

B.E. International Program
Faculty of Economics
Thammasat University

EE311 Microeconomics Theory, Semester 1/2019

Homework Assignment #7 | Due date: Friday 15 November 2019
(in-class submission, before lecture begins!)

Instruction:

- 1) Attempt all questions.
- 2) You may study and discuss in group but you have to write up your solutions independently and by handwriting only. Copying and/or Plagiarism is considered as a serious crime in academic arena and it will not be tolerated. If detected, all parties involved receive 'zero.'
- 3) If you have any questions, please feel free to email me at pwrasai@econ.tu.ac.th

Game Theory (CH 14)

Please attempt the following questions from your Textbook.

14.1 (Briefly Explain); 14.2 (Briefly Explain); 14.9; 14.15;14.20

"Tis better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.' In other words, love is a dominant strategy."
— Avinash K. Dixit,

Thinking Strategically: The Competitive Edge in Business, Politics, and Everyday Life