

Sometimes the poor did not need help but they need opportunity or a place for them to be shine and more useful. The Poverty, Inc. is the documentary that reflect the of the poor which want to clarify what they demanded for.

There are a lot of organization that tried to help the poor country by giving them the fish instead of the string. They tried to give them the things and stuffs instead of provided them the opportunity by job creation. They tried to provide everything to make their life better that make them get used to and did not tried to improve their life quality by themselves. Afterward, those organization are still continuing to donate those staffs by did not think about the side effect that will follow. Furthermore, they did not ask those poor about what they want which make them face the old problems and get stuck in those traps forever.

This documentary is the medium to deliver the sound of those poor to world to show what they want. For example, in Haiti, since they faced the earthquake, many countries and organization thought that they are very poor and they tried to help by donating the food, clothes, medicine and etc. That is what those organization knows and tried to help. However, it has not made their life better. The reason is they do not have any money to invest and create the value by themselves, they just have the stuff to live day by day. In contrast, it also ruined the market mechanism. When people already know that they can survive by do nothing, they will do follow that way then there is no activity occur in the market which will lead to the failure of the market and make the economy undeveloped. Furthermore, this situation is not satisfied Haitian needs. They want their country to be more develop, they need the opportunity and job creation to improve their own skill. This situation is not occurred only in the Haiti but also in many countries in the Africa and Middle-East.

On my point of view, after I watched the documentary, many countries or the organizations should make some survey or do the research about the impact of helping. To solve any problems, we should solve from the root of the problem not the effect of the problem. In the poverty case, each country should do the job creation or provided the education and basic facilities such as clean water or electricity to build the good base for people to live their life. It will face a hard time at the beginning period which will need some help like those organization have done nowadays but it will be better in the next period and still continue growing. Furthermore, if those organization still want to help or support, I thought that they should provide some volunteer to teach the skill for them instead of only a goods or foods that can make them live day by day. It is good that they want to help other country, but they should study about each case and provide the help in the proper way.
