

According to my viewpoint, I totally disagree with the failure to include LGBTQI. I believe that as time passed, more people realized that they are considered as LGBTQI. However, if this trend is still ongoing, those LGBTQI would less likely to admit their true identity and thus will not fully participate in the economic activities. Therefore, the labor market would experienced disruptions, which later contribute to economic instability. On macro-level, the potential risk possessed include unsafe migration, poverty, which mainly due to less opportunities received from the failure of inclusion.
