

1. Every day when Phil wake up and find that he was trapped was because it was always February the 2nd every time he wake up.
2. No, the movie does not show any religious view, but this might show different view of the world. Phil always show respect and practice according to the rules, but after he knew that his action show no consequence since tomorrow will always be the 2nd February, he act immorally and do not show any responsibility to any of his action. Finally he decides to act suicide, but was not successful.
3. Phil learn to acknowledge every aspect of his life and tried to make things right. He tried to find the meaning of life instead of pursuing for his own pleasure; he went out helping others, showing how things are done right.
4. After Phil decided to act suicide, but was not successful, he decides to find a true purpose for his life. Phil started going out to help people and learned people's habit in town. In the end, Phil knows every single people in the town and did save much life.
5. I could do every single things I would like disregarding morality since there are no consequences after the actions.
6. I would say that to be born as a human, it is a privileged for us to do great things and tried to observe every aspect that we could.
