

Employee Motivation & Human Resources Managment

BA291

Learning Objectives

1. Define motivation, and identify the classical motivation theories.
2. Explain why many consider expectancy theory to be the best current explanation of employee motivation.
3. Identify the strengths and weaknesses of goal-setting theory.

Learning Objectives

4. Describe the job characteristics model, and explain how it helps predict motivation and performance.
5. Define reinforcement theory, and differentiate between positive and negative reinforcement.
6. List five managerial strategies that are vital to maintaining a motivated workforce.

What motivates you to perform at your best?

What Motivates Employees to Peak Performance?

- Motivation

- The combination of forces that move individuals to take certain actions and avoid other actions

- Engagement

- An employee's rational and emotional commitment to his or her work

Four Indicators of Motivation

Four Fundamental Needs

What behaviours
are our incentives encouraging?

The drive to acquire

The drive to bond

What behaviours
does our culture
encourage?

The drive to comprehend

Are people connected to the bigger picture?

The drive to defend

Can we share thoughts openly and candidly?

Classical Theories of Motivation

- Scientific management

- A management approach designed to improve employees' efficiency by scientifically studying their work

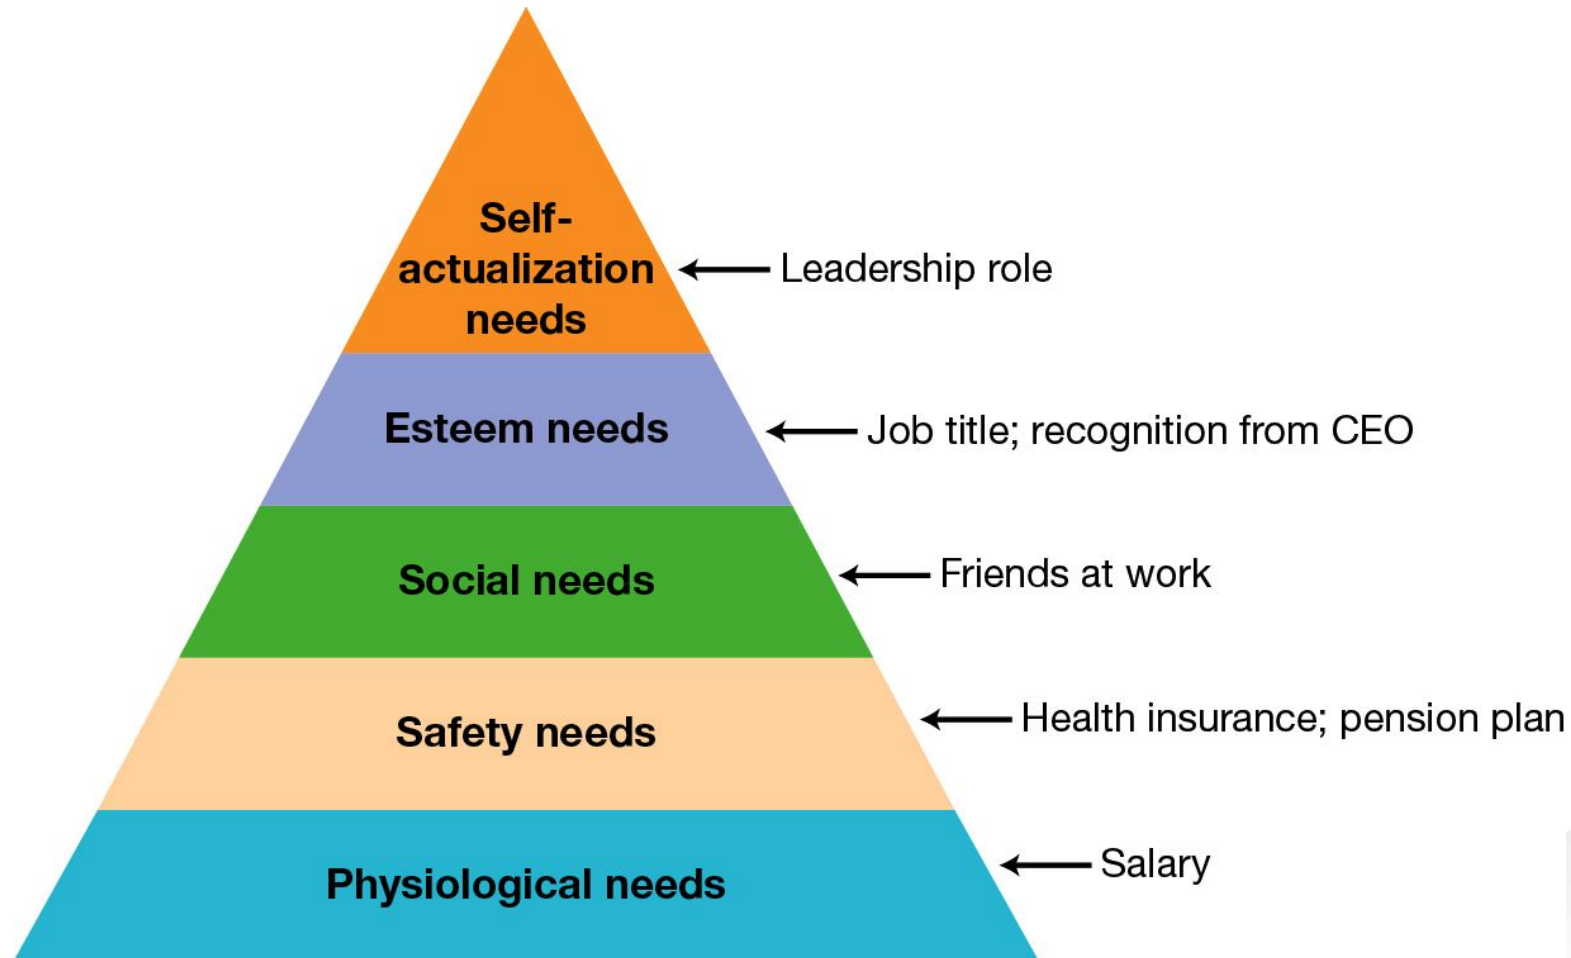

The Hawthorne Studies and the “Hawthorne Effect”

- The Hawthorne effect

- A supposed effect of organizational research, in which employees change their behavior because they are being studied and given special treatment
- Validity of the effect is uncertain, and the Hawthorne studies were richer and more influential than this simple outcome would suggest

Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs

Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs

- Maslow's hierarchy

- A model in which human needs are arranged in order of their priority, with the most basic needs at the bottom and the more advanced needs toward the top

Theory X & Y

- Theory X

- A managerial assumption that employees are irresponsible, are unambitious, and dislike work and that managers must use force, control, or threats to motivate them

- Theory Y

- A managerial assumption that employees enjoy meaningful work, are naturally committed to certain goals, are capable of creativity, and seek out responsibility under the right conditions

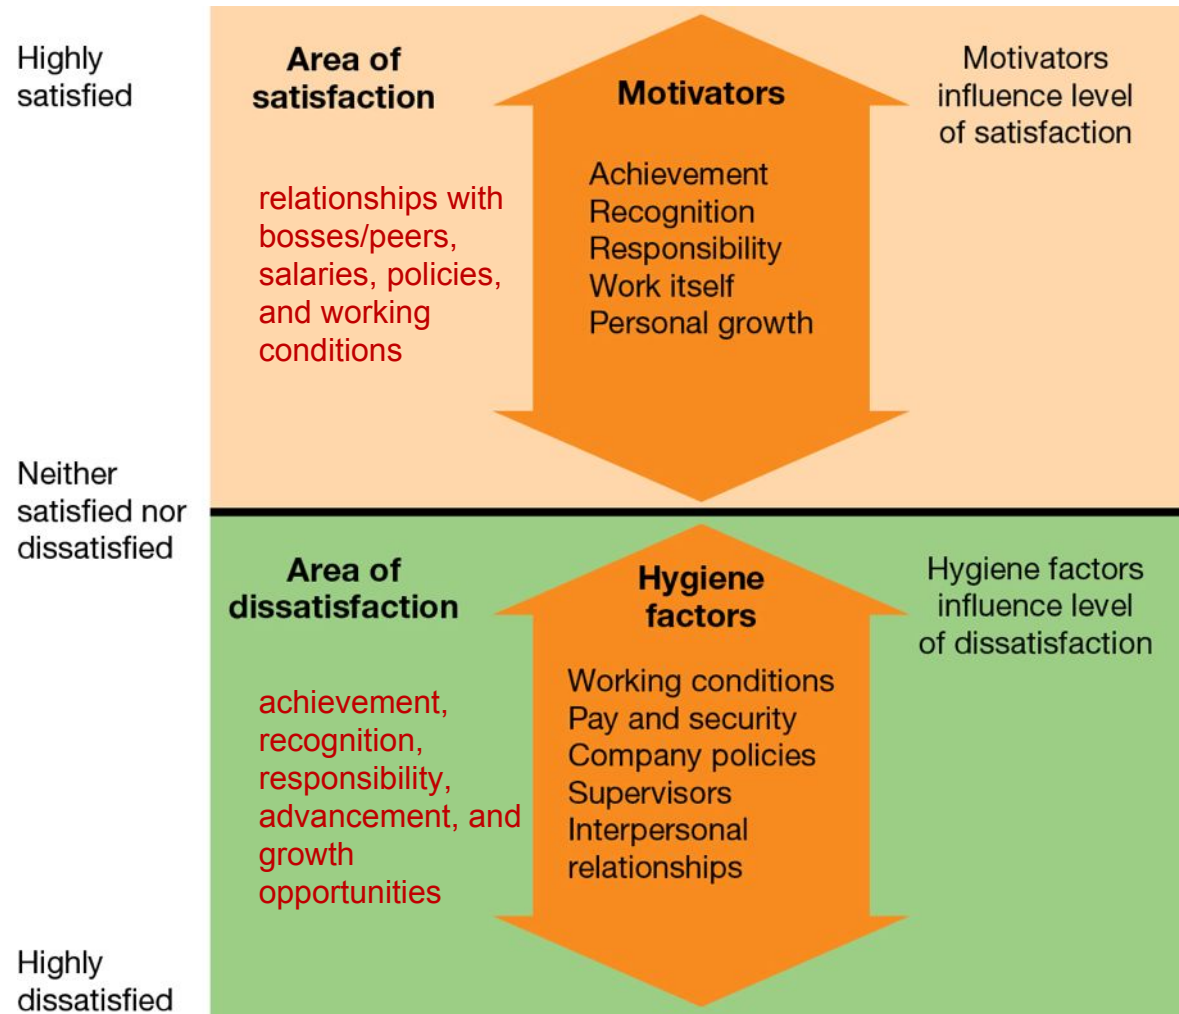

Herzberg's Two Factors

- Herzberg's two-factor theory
 - A model that divides motivational forces into satisfiers (“motivators”) and dissatisfiers (“hygiene factors”)

The things that caused satisfaction or motivation were intrinsic to the job itself

the things that caused dissatisfaction were provided extrinsically (not part of the job)

McClelland's Three Needs

- Three-needs theory

- David McClelland's model of motivation that highlights the needs for power, affiliation, and achievement

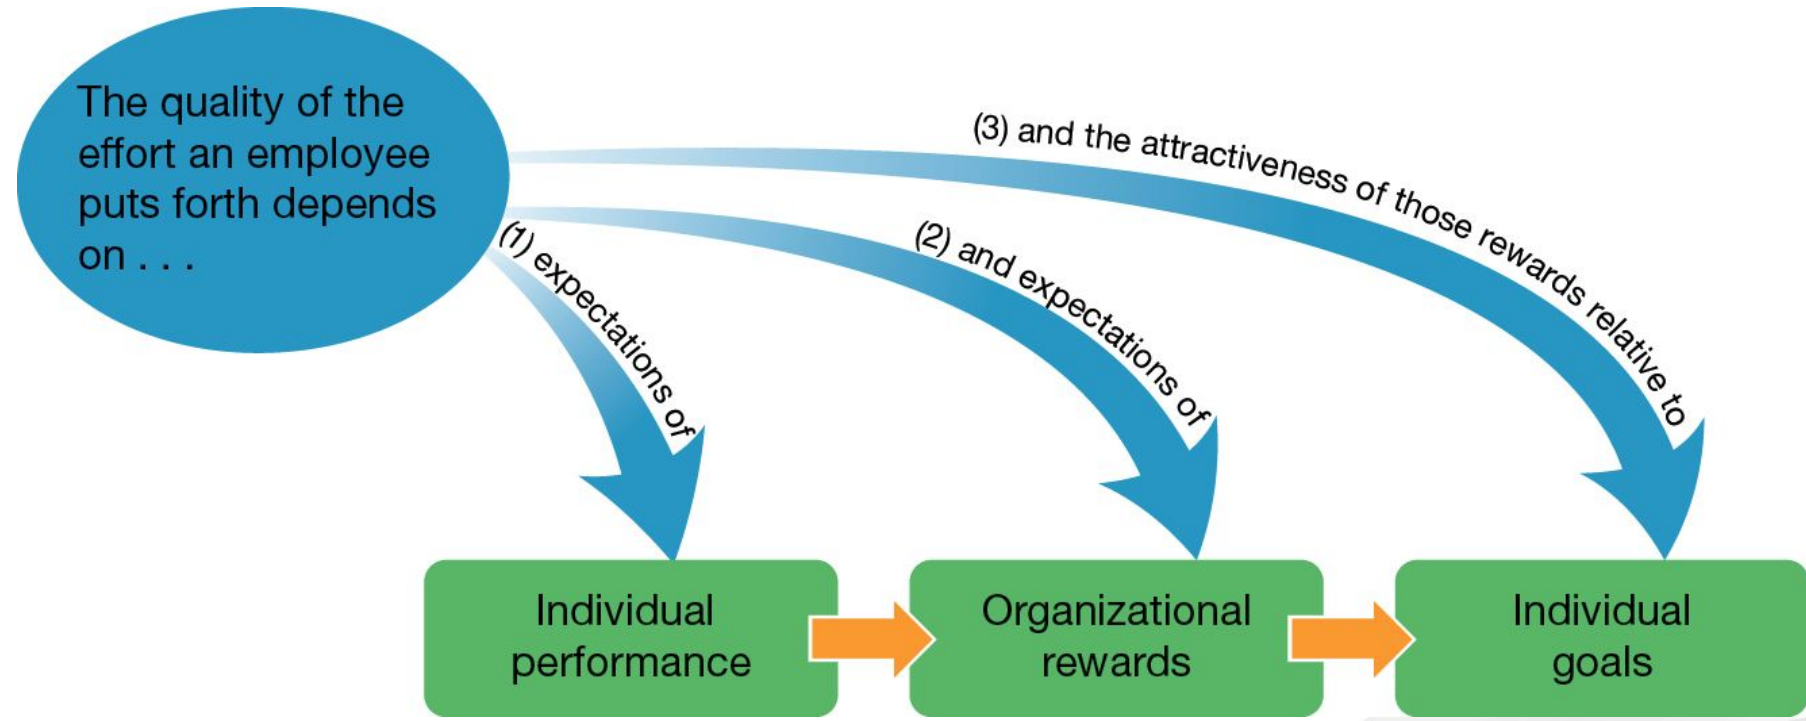

Explaining Employee Choices

- Expectancy theory

- ↳ The idea that the effort employees put into their work depends on expectations about their own ability to perform, expectations about likely rewards, and the attractiveness of those rewards

Expectancy Theory

Explaining Employee Choices

- Equity theory

- ↳ The idea that employees base their level of satisfaction on the ratio of their inputs to the job and the outputs or rewards they receive from it if a person perceives an inequity, the person will be motivated to reduce or eliminate the tension and perceived inequity.

Motivating with Challenging Goals

- Goal-setting theory
 - ↳ A motivational theory suggesting that setting goals can be an effective way to motivate employees

- Goals should be specific enough to give employees clarity and focus.
- Goals should be difficult enough to inspire energetic and committed effort.
- There should be clear “ownership” of goals so that accountability can be established.
- Individuals’ should have belief in their ability to meet their goals.

Management by Objectives

- Management by objectives (MBO)
 - A motivational approach in which managers and employees work together to structure personal goals and objectives for every individual, department, and project to mesh with the organization's goals

Management by Objectives

1. Setting goals

Top managers work with middle managers, then middle managers work with first-line managers to develop goals for their respective work groups. At the same time, managers and employees at all levels collaborate with their supervisors to set individual goals for performance.

2. Planning action

Managers determine exactly how their individual and group goals will be accomplished. To ensure that goals are reached on time, a schedule is prepared for the action plan.

3. Implementing plans

Managers and employees implement their plans in their own way, which allows them to control their own performance. Their expertise gets channeled for the benefit of the organization, and they have more opportunities to develop their professional skills.

4. Reviewing performance

Managers periodically review the performance of the people they supervise and evaluate how well the plans are achieving group and individual goals. Obstacles and strategies for overcoming them are identified. Old goals may be modified or new goals established. Achievement is recognized and rewarded.

Risks and Limitations of Goal-Setting Theory

- Overly narrow goals
- Overly challenging goals
- Inappropriate time horizons
- Unintentional performance limitations
- Missed learning opportunities
- Unhealthy internal competition
- Decreased intrinsic motivation

Redesigning Jobs to Stimulate Performance

- Job characteristics model

- ↳ A model suggesting that five core job dimensions influence three critical psychological states that determine motivation, performance, and other outcomes

Critical Psychological States

- ✓ Experienced meaningfulness of the work
- ✓ Experienced meaningfulness of the work
- ✓ Knowledge of actual results

Approaches to Modifying Core Job Dimensions

- Job enrichment

- ↳ Making jobs more challenging and interesting by expanding the range of skills required

- Cross-training

- ↳ Training workers to perform multiple jobs and rotating them through these various jobs to combat boredom or burnout

Reinforcing High-Performance Behavior

- Reinforcement theory

- A motivational approach based on the idea that managers can motivate employees by influencing their behaviors with positive and negative reinforcement

Types of Reinforcement

- Positive reinforcement

- Encouraging desired behaviors by offering pleasant consequences for completing or repeating those behaviors

- Negative reinforcement

- ↳ Encouraging the repetition of a particular behavior (desirable or not) by removing unpleasant consequences for the behavior

"WOULDN'T IT BE EASIER JUST TO TELL ME WHAT I CAN DO?"

Reinforcement and Punishment

Motivational Strategies

- Providing timely and frequent feedback
- Personalizing motivational efforts
- Adapting to circumstances and special needs
- Tackling workplace problems before they have a chance to destroy morale
- Being inspirational leaders
